

CANNING FRUITS WITHOUT SUGAR

Was Subject at Home Bureau Demonstration at New Paltz—Sugar May be Added When Fruit is Used, Equalizing Demand.

A large number of interested women, including a visitor from Kingston, attended the canning demonstration held in the Grange Hall at New Paltz last week. That fruits may be preserved by canning without sugar—the sugar to be added when the product is used, thus equalizing the demand throughout the year—or by the use of substitutes was demonstrated in the canning of plums without sugar and strawberries in a thin syrup, using corn syrup and water.

One of the points brought out by Miss Stuart, the Home Bureau manager, in this demonstration was that the custom of canning fruits in syrup is based on the improvement in flavor and texture which sugar gives to the fruit. Sugar is not necessary for the preservation of fruit. Success depends upon sufficient heating to kill organisms which cause food to spoil and then sealing them carefully and perfectly to prevent the entrance of other organisms. Fruit may be canned in water or its own juice. The sugar may be omitted without in any way affecting the ease of canning, or keeping quality of the fruit or the wholesomeness of the product. Strawberries are the only fruit not canned successfully without some sweetening as they fade quickly and become rather soft. In canning these at this demonstration a syrup made according to the following proportions was used: 2 cups of corn syrup to three cups of water and this boil three minutes. This syrup is improved by the addition of a small amount of sugar, about one-third cupful to the above quantity of water.

Directions For Canning Without Sugar.

Fruit Canned in Water—To can fruit without sugar by the cold pack method fill the jars of fruit with boiling water instead of syrup and then boil them from 15 to 30 minutes depending upon the kind of fruit, as in any cold packing canning berries should not be boiled in cans more than fifteen minutes.

Thin Syrup—The use of a thin instead of a thick syrup will save sugar in canning. A thin syrup may be made from 1 1/2 cups of sugar and 4 cups of water. This syrup may be used for fruits when some sweetening is desired.

Fruit Canned in Fruit Juice—Any fruit which is sweet enough to be eaten in its raw state without sugar may be canned in its own juice without sugar.

To can fruit in its own juice select a third or half of the fruit, which is least perfect in shape and extract the juice as for jelly making. Use this extracted juice for cooking the fruit to be heated in the can. This method requires more fruit but gives a satisfactory product which does not need to be sweetened before being used, since it makes use of the natural supply of sugar in the fruit.

the fruit and not the syrup which is to be preserved for winter use. Other foods may be used to replace the sugar in the winter's menu. There will be no equivalent for absent fruit.

Use of Acid in Canning Certain Vegetables.

Beside the fruit canning a shorter method of canning beans, peas and corn was also demonstrated by the canning of beans with the addition of vinegar. In this method the directions for canning the vegetables by the cold pack method are followed, and in addition to those one table-spoon of vinegar (unless very strong) to each pint jar is added. Then the above vegetable need only to be boiled in the jars but 1 1/2 hours instead of three hours one day or one hour on three successive days. When the vegetables are canned using the vinegar there will be a slight acid taste but not enough acid present to curdle the milk when the vegetables are cooked in milk or cream.

The Home Bureau committee at New Paltz with whom this canning demonstration was given is Mrs. R. E. Terpenning, chairman; Mrs. Burt Malcom, secretary; Miss Mary Nilon, Mrs. A. E. Jansen, Mrs. Fred DuBois and Mrs. Eugene Fuller.

YE EDITOR TELLS OF HIS RAMBLES

Sunday Service in Public Park at Which Clergymen Complimented Newspaper Men—Why Porter Thought Monckton Bore Was a Fake.

Rambles.

Now we began our journey through the Province of New Brunswick. This province is a little larger than Nova Scotia and a little smaller than our state of Maine, which it adjoins and to which it naturally bears resemblance in soil, scenery and resources. In such respects as it differs it is superior. At least, Professor Shaler of Harvard University, perhaps the highest authority on such matters, says that it "is a splendid agricultural country, much finer than any section of the New England States." Its three rivers, the St. John, Miramichi and Restigouche are linked together by lakes and smaller streams in such a manner that there is a network of water transportation over the whole province. The possibilities of development here are endless. Staple crops, fisheries, dairying, lumber, "white coal" for manufacturing—all invite enterprise. Like all the maritime provinces, and like all Canada for that matter, the great need is for men and capital, and these will not be lacking when the world finds out what opportunities exist—opportunities which make the Klondike look like a pop corn stand.

Observing Sunday.

Our first Sunday of the trip was passed on the Atlantic ocean and for reasons previously mentioned few of our folks observed the day in their accustomed manner. No doubt prayers arose for strength to live until we reached shore but they were not made in public. This Sunday was different. We awoke in Monckton, which next to St. John is the largest city in the province, being not much smaller than our Kingston. The inhabitants had arranged for us to have desirable seats in whatever place of worship we chose to visit, and besides staged an open air service in the park. The majority of our party was religiously neutral to the extent of not caring which denomination puts Satan out of business; so most of us went to the park. Moreover, a great crowd of citizens joined us. The groves were God's first temples, the poet tells us, and I think few people would go into a church if there was a service under shade trees with gentle breezes blowing. I enjoyed this service more than any I ever attended except the funeral of a man whom I did not love. There was congregational singing and a collection which was pleasing but not particularly novel. Then a local dominie made a prayer. He told the Lord in simple language about our visit to the town and other current events. In his desire to cover the ground thoroughly he made a couple of slips, but I am sure didn't mislead the Lord at all, because nothing happened. Then a very renowned divine, who had come all the way from Toronto, spoke to us. I am sorry I cannot find his name in my notes. He was good. He read us the words of Jesus about not taking thought for the morrow, considering the lilies of the field which toil not, and devoting oneself to search for the kingdom of God. He said he was glad to meet us, because our being in the newspaper business proved that we were not seekers after wealth, and implied that we had chosen the better part. I am not attempting to quote the bishop's exact phrases, but I have his idea interpreted right enough. I had never looked at the subject from this angle and was gratified to know that I was better than I knew. I could have listened to this divine for hours. If he had said instead that all publishers were liars and crafters it would have done no good and would have spoiled the day for us.

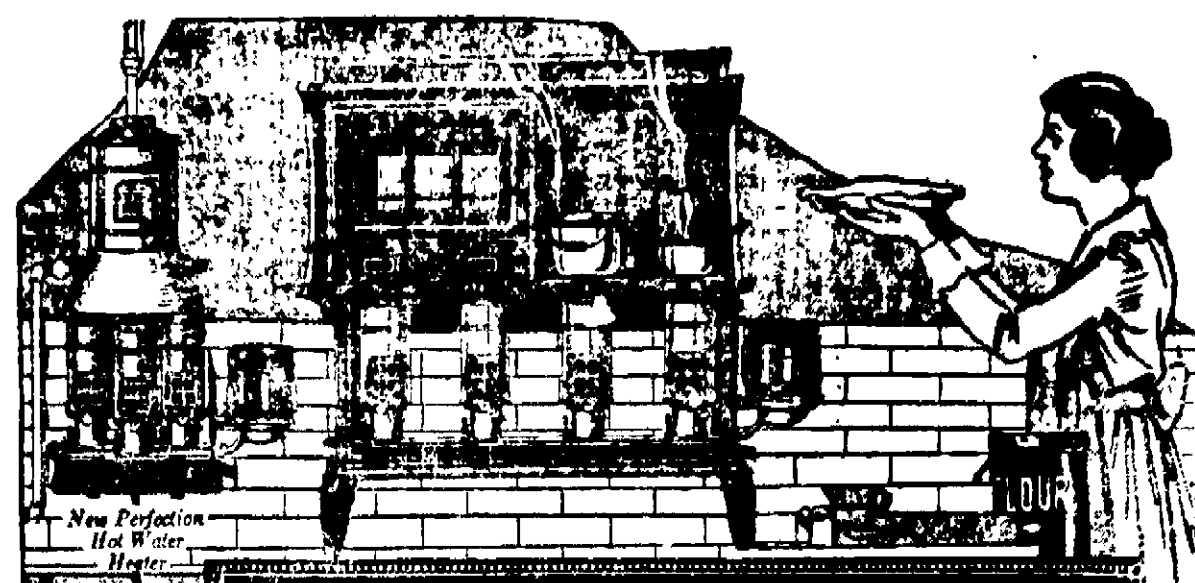

After luncheon we were the guests of citizens on an auto trip through the surrounding country. We found that this town, of which most of us had never heard, was on the road to great wealth, which is assured by the natural gas wells near by which supply heat and power for the whole city and an apparently unlimited supply of power for factories. At night we were treated a magnificent dinner at the Brunswick Hotel, and there were the customary speeches of welcome and responses. His worship the Mayor cautioned us to be careful not to refer to this affair as a "banquet," because it is against the law of the province to have banquets on Sundays. It is not a crime, however, to get just as good a dinner as you can get. Nobody is going to get into trouble by being kind to me, and I am prepared to take my dying oath that this was merely a dinner, although the unrefined might have thought otherwise.

The Tides and "The Bore."

All around the Bay of Fundy, as every school boy knows, the tides run very high—sometimes as much as sixty feet. Here at Monckton a remarkable phenomenon occurs twice a day, being paralleled nowhere else on earth except at one point in China. The incoming tide from the Bay of Fundy is forced violently through Chignecto Bay, raising the water some thirty feet. This volume is forced so rapidly into the Petitcodiac river that it raises a wall of water from one to six feet high which shoots right up the river, just as if it were rolling over land. They call this "The Bore," and the natives are justly proud of it. We all saw it in spite of the discouragement of Harry, our porter, who believed that the "bore was all bull." I got out at this station many times," affirmed Harry, "and never saw a bore of any kind." One of the remarkable sights of the region is the presence of ships stranded a half mile or so from land. It is hard for mariners to believe that in a few hours the tide will come in and float them again.

COX NOMINATED ON 44TH BALLOT

the opposition of Tammany, of New Jersey, Ohio, Massachusetts and Illinois to his candidacy began to make itself felt and in the end it was these states which beat him. Alone they could not nominate anyone, but their power was sufficient to prevent any one else getting it. Most of the delegates realized this fully, so that when the Cox bandwagon started, it did not lack for passengers.

The delegates were tired. They wanted to go home. They had fought for three days over a platform, they had had to cancel train reservations and to remake plans a half dozen times, because of the nights which had made the convention the most spectacular in years.

They had come to the balloting. They had balloted and balloted with no result except confusion and a feeling of being hopelessly deadlocked. More-over, they had been in their seats for 12 hours, lunchless, smokeless, and heartily tired of the monotonous roll calls, which led nowhere. A bandwagon came along and they climbed aboard, happy to get on.

The convention adjourned to meet at 1 o'clock this afternoon (local time) to choose a vice-presidential candidate.

1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Cream shortening; add sugar slowly, add well-beaten egg and flavoring. Sift together flour, salt and baking powder and add to the mixture a little at a time alternately with the milk. Bake in greased loaf layer or cake pans in moderate oven 25 to 30 minutes. Cover with the following icing:

SEVEN-MINUTE ICING

1 egg white (unbeaten)
1/2 cup granulated sugar
1 tablespoon cold water
1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
Place first three ingredients in top of double boiler. Place over boiling water and beat with Dover beater for seven minutes. Add flavoring. Spread on top and sides of cake.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER

Made from Cream of Tartar
derived from grapes

Instead of granulated sugar 1/2 cup of light syrup can be used and no cold water. This makes a softer icing.
For Chocolate Icing use above, adding 1/4 square melted unsweetened chocolate.
For "Coffee Icing" use 1 tablespoon cold bottled coffee in place of water.

Orange Layer Cake

1 cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1/2 cup milk
1 1/2 cups flour
3 teaspoons Cleveland's Baking Powder
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
Cream the shortening. Add the sugar and the yolks of the eggs. Cream well and add half the milk. Add half the flour, which has been sifted with the baking powder. Mix in the flavoring, milk and the remainder of the flour. Bake in two greased square layer tins in a moderate oven for about 20 minutes. Spread between layers and on top the following:

ORANGE FILLING AND ICING

Whites of 2 eggs
1 1/2 cups confectioner's sugar
1 tablespoon orange juice
Soft pulp and rind of 1 orange
Whip the eggs to a stiff froth. Add the sugar, a little at a time to make stiff enough to spread. Whip in the pulp, juice and rind of the orange.
